BLANCO STEELART

First impressions matter, not second glances.

Who needs to see everything, when mere details spark enthusiasm.

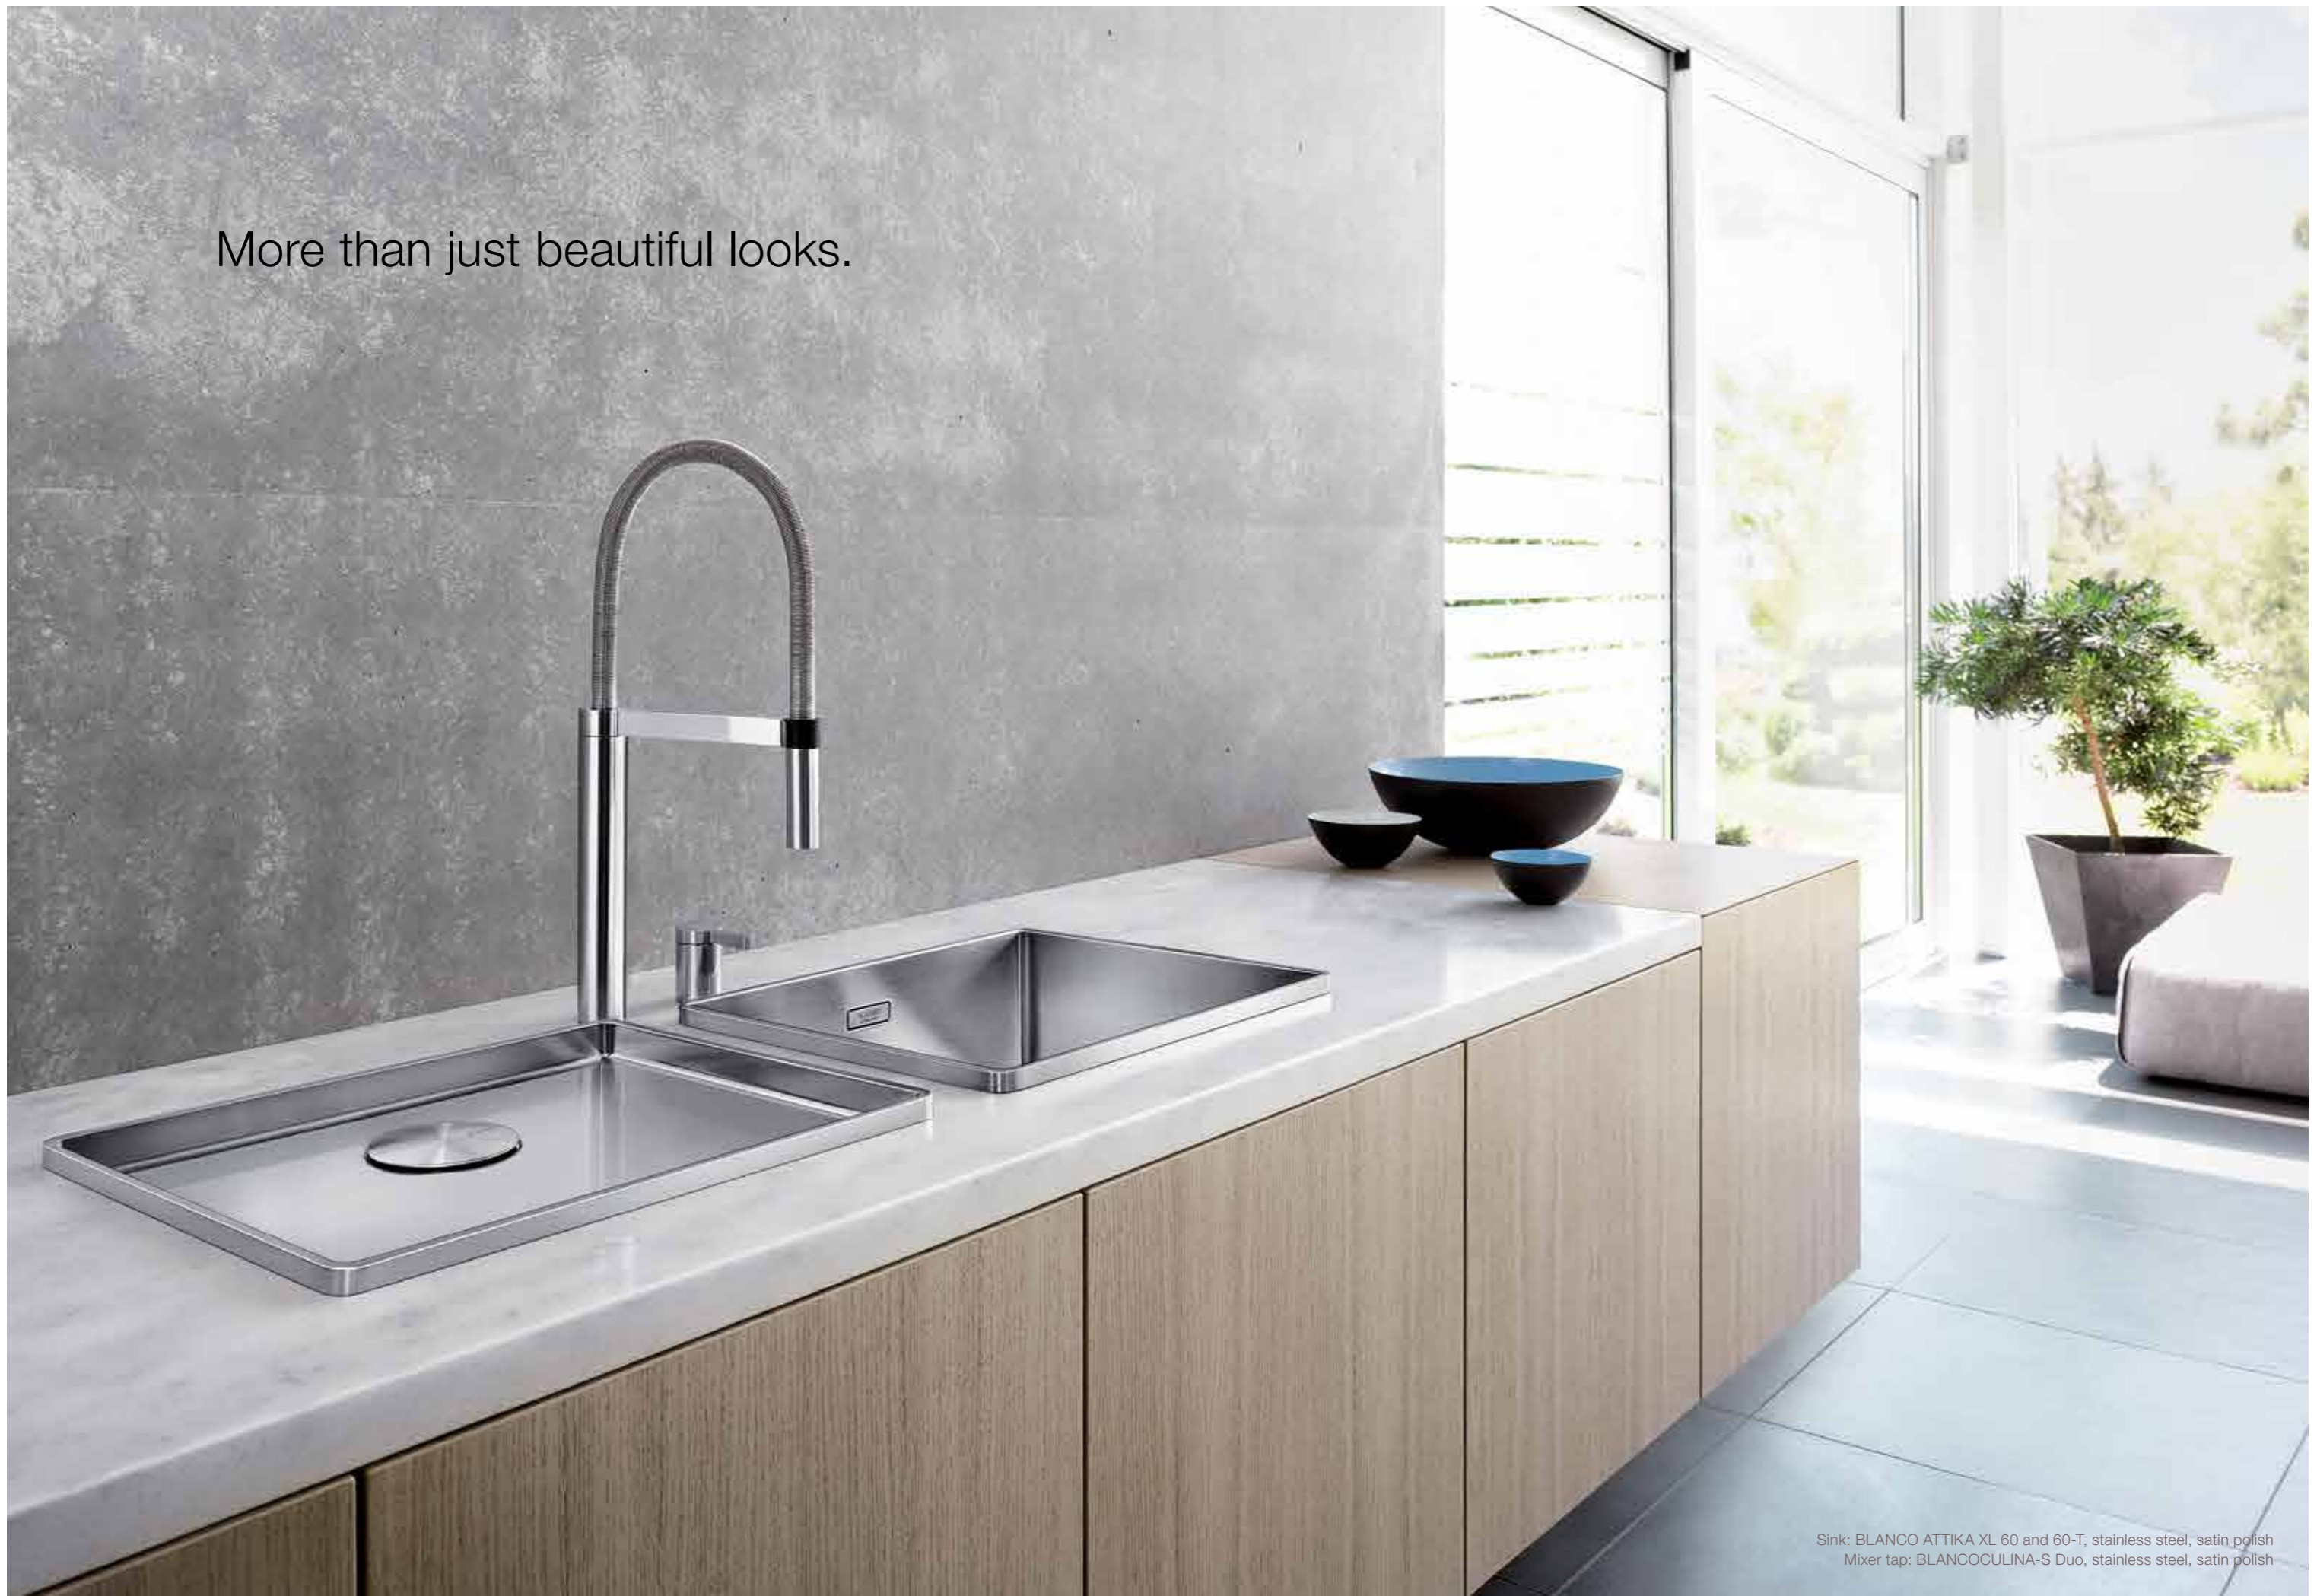

A fleeting look, a simple touch. That's usually all it takes to gain a first impression. Sometimes it's the little details, sometimes an overall impression that reveal a unique character. But how do you turn first impressions into an endless source of unforgettable moments? It's a question tackled by our employees in the STEELART high tech manufacture every day. From the initial idea to the finishing touch. The result: why not turn the page and gain your own first impressions.

Exclusiveness.

The moment you see them, some things radiate an aura that you can't quite describe. Although they clearly outshine everything around them, they do so in an understated manner. You can sense the hours of craftsmanship and every thought invested in their creation. All stainless steel sinks in the STEELART high tech manufacture are produced in small-scale series with loving attention to detail, ensuring that all products meet the highest standards of quality and exclusive exceptional design.

Made of stainless steel and passion.

More than just beautiful looks.

Mixer tap: BLANCO CULINA-S Duo, stainless steel, satin polish Perfection.

The quest for perfection has always been our driving force in life. However, always setting your sights on the best calls for a passionate commitment to the job. Expending more effort on every new idea, every small detail, every single step of the way. The fruits of that effort are illustrated, for instance, on our award-winning STEELART stainless steel sinks: everything is perfect. For this reason many work stages in the STEELART manufacture are still performed by hand. And you can see it – in all our products.

Pure design. Impeccable contours.

Perfection is sometimes less.

And sometimes a bit more.

Our ambition? To always exceed our own achievements.

Innovation.

Even when we're really happy with what we've achieved, in a certain sense we are always seeking something new and original. Is it out of curiosity or more likely ambition? That is how BLANCO STEELART reinvented stainless steel: in a velvety-matt look, twice as hard and more resilient. A revolutionary innovation that changes everything and sets a new international benchmark.

Not just superficially impressive.

Questioning the status quo is the first step towards new ideas.

System design.

Why spend so much time thinking about so many things? Quite simply because it gives us a sense of fulfilment when we see that someone has thought long and hard about something. It may be small details, an overall impression or the fact that everything blends together in harmony. At STEELART we have a special name for it: system design. Worktops, bowls, mixer taps and accessories can be combined as you like and complement each other perfectly – both in terms of appearance and function.

Superb alone. Perfect together.

You can tell a system by the way its parts interact with consummate mastery.

Individuality.

Everyone is different by nature. From individual looks to distinctive personalities. And everyone has their own special needs, aspirations, ideas of life. BLANCO STEELART gives everyone the opportunity to express their individuality. Every worktop is custom-made to your special wishes. Opt for dynamic curves or pure lines. Your imagination is virtually set no bounds.

Ever elegant: with clear contours.

Individuality is not about setting boundaries,
but about standing out from the crowd.
